Sam's uncle is a farmer. He lives in a farm house in the middle of Wales. He has a herd of cattle.

One night, it was very windy. Sam's uncle was sitting at the table reading a book. The title of the book was 'The Terrible Storm.'

Suddenly, the lights went out. "Oh bother!" he said. "It must be a fuse." He went to check the fuse, but it was alright. "Oh, bother!" he said again. "It must be a power cut." He went to fetch a candle from under the sink. He stuck one in the top of a milk bottle and lit it with a match.

He could hear the wind outside. It was howling.

"I must go and make sure the cows are all in the shelter," he said to himself. So out he went into the wind with his lantern. A single cow was out in the open. The rest had found the shelter and were safe. He got the cow into the shelter with the others and went back to the farm house. It was starting to rain. He had just grabbed the door handle when the first flash of lightening lit the sky.

Speech Marks Revision

Explain:

I'm sure you remember that when we are writing, we need to use some special marks to tell readers that someone is talking. We call them 'speech marks'. They are placed around the words that are actually spoken.

Just to remind you:

"Look at my hat."

Notice how the full stop comes inside the speech mark.

However, if I want to carry on the sentence, then I put a comma after the speech inside the marks:

"Look at my hat," said Sam. ✓

"Look at my hat", said Sam. ✗

Copy these sentences and put in “ ”.

1. Hello Ann. Can I come to your house?

2. I like the feather in your hat, said Mrs. Green.

3. Are you able to help me fix this table, please?

4. What would you like for breakfast? said Bob.

5. What is the title of the book you are reading?

6. I will have an apple for breakfast please, said Ann.

7. Who is your uncle? asks Billy.
