Introduction: Tom has broken his tooth. Let's find out what happened.

June is at home. She is cooking tea.

She cooks a roast chicken for tea with peas and roast spuds. Tom says that June makes the best roast spuds.

Then she bakes some cakes. Tom, Sam and Pam like cream cakes!

Mum is making the cakes for tea as well.

A tea-time, Tom tucks into his spuds.

“Oo, my tooth,” moans Tom.

“ A bit has come off. I think it is broken!”

“That means a trip to the dentist for you,” says Mum.

Tom cannot eat his tea. But he can eat the soft cake!

“I’m glad you made cakes,” he said to his wife. “At least I can eat something! Cream cakes are the best!”

In the morning Tom rings the dentist.

The dentist tells him to see him at ten to three.

Tom is glad to visit the dentist.

He gets his coat and sets off to see him. The dentist mends Tom's tooth.

Tom goes home. He smells the tea cooking.

"It is roast spuds, again?" he says to June.

"Yes, it is," she says.

"Oh good!" says Tom.

Tom is glad to eat his roast spuds!
