

The Cave

Reading Made Simple

y(eye)

All rights reserved. Text Copyright ©
J. Arrowsmith 2021

Pictures copyright © V. Conway 2021

This book is to be read after the sound

y saying eye

has been learnt.

Look at these words together before your child starts to read this book. You can sound them out.

rucksack

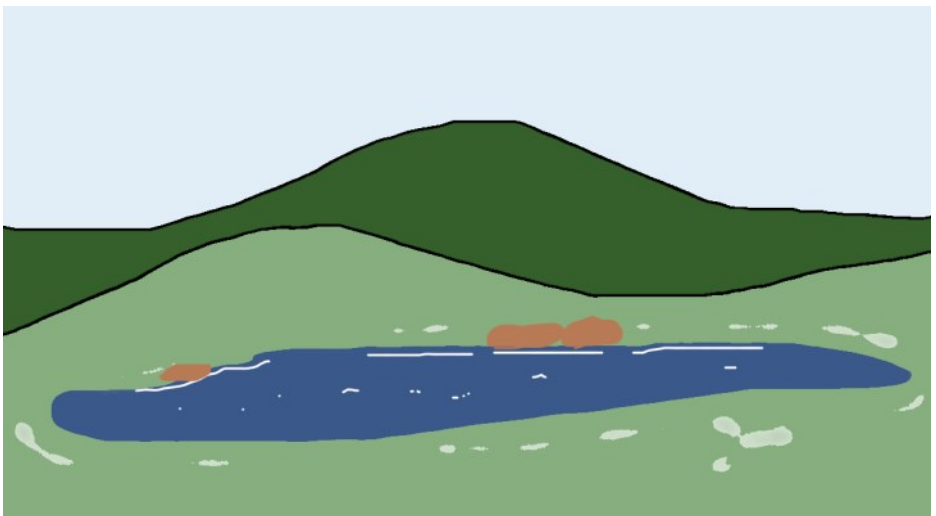

hole

quickly

Tom, Pam and Sam are going on a long walk up into the hills. They each have a big rucksack with lunch and lots of drink.

Tom, Sam and Pam take a rest on a bank and have a drink. Then, off they go up into the hills. A man on a blue bike waves to them as he rides by.

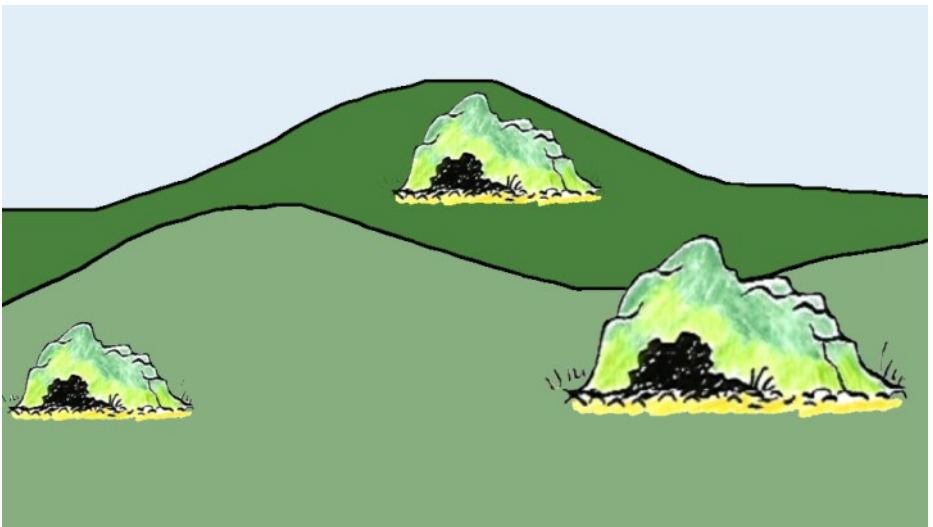

Soon they get to a lake up in the hills.

They stop to have lunch.

When they have had lunch, they go on walking. Soon they see lots of caves.

They see big caves and little caves.

“Look here,” says Sam, as they get to a big cave. Here is the man’s blue bike. He must have gone into the cave.”

As they are looking, a loud CRACK comes from the cave.

Then CRACK, CRACK, CRACK!

Rocks fall, blocking the way into the cave.

“We must help the man,” said Tom.

“He will be stuck in the cave.”

“HELP! HELP!” cries the man.

“He needs help quickly,” says Tom.

“Can we see a hole into the cave?”

Sam and Pam get on top of the cave and look for a hole.

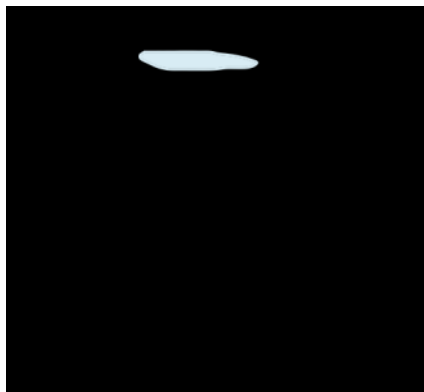

‘Here is a hole,’ cries Pam. ‘It is a big hole.’

They chat to the man in the cave.

‘Can you help me?’ he says.

‘We will try,’ they say. “Can you see the hole?”

“It is dark in here,” says the man, “but I can see a light. I will try and get to the light.”

Soon he said, “I am here. I have a torch. I will shine it up at the hole. Can you see the light from my torch?”

“Yes,” said Tom, “We can. That is good. I have a long rope. I will drop it down to you.”

Tom drops the rope into the hole.

“Have you got it,” calls Tom.

“Yes,” says the man.

“Right, now we will get you up.”

Pam and Sam help Tom to tug the man up. Soon he is on the top of the cave with them.

“I am free!” cries the man.

“You have saved me! Thank you so much.”

Tom, Pam and Sam walked back to their car. They were glad they could help the man.

The man got on his blue bike and rode off with a wave.

Join Tom, Pam and Sam as they go for a walk into the hills looking for caves.

